TO BE RENTED,

For [illegible] years, more or leſs, as the parties [illegible], that deſirable and improved Lot called

SPRING GARDEN.

The reaſon of the proprietor's leaving a place ſo truly advantageous, is an inclination to follow his own profeſſion, for the ſake of educating his own unfortunate family. There is a good houſe on the premiſes, a large room for a Billiard Table, bath coolers, and an excellent ſpring houſe. The ſoil is rich by nature, uncommonly manured, and well cropped. The owner's preſent intentions are never to occupy it again himſelf; therefore has no objection to enter a clauſe in this ſhort leaſe, that he never will change his tenant for a conſideration leſs than fifty dollars an[illegible] keeping the ſtipulated covenants.—Apply on the premiſes for particulars. CADIZ, APRIL 7.

Three milliards of falſe aſſignats, which the Engliſh wanted to paſs in France, have been ſtopped at the cuſtom-houſe of Cadiz. The governor has in every reſpect, completely ſeconded the views of the Republicans. He has manifeſted an intention of puniſhing the Iriſh houſes which directed the movement on board of the French fleet.

Citizen Dumanoir, commander of a veſſel, according to Letters of 27th Ventoſe, has gone to Madrid, for the purpoſe of making, in conjunction with our ambaſſador, complaints to the Court of Spain on the conduct of the Iriſh.

PROCLAMATIONS.

RICHERY, Commander in Chief of the Naval Forces of the French Republic in the Bay of Cadiz.

The mutinies which appear daily on board of different veſſels of the fleet, and the outrages of the law, and contempt of the oath to remain faithful to it, ought not to remain unpuniſhed. It is time at leaſt to prove to the inſtigators, and to the chiefs of the rebels, that the days of pardoning are paſſed, and that thoſe of national vengeance are arrived.

A grand meaſure is taken. The French republic, though in a foreign country, ſhall cauſe its laws to be reſpected. The Spaniſh government is intereſted in the maintenance of good order and ſubordination.

In conſequence, orders are given to each captain of the Police to be obſerved on board the veſſels of his diviſion; and, in the name of the law, all good citizens are commanded to obey his orders, and not to involve themſelves in the inevitable misfortunes which muſt reſult from their diſobedience.

(Signed) RICHERY,
COMMANDER.

And ſealed with the ſeal of the Republic.

RICHERY, Commander in Chief of the Naval Forces of the French Republic in the Bay of Cadiz.

In conſequence of the information which has been given me of the complete revolt of the Frigate Friponne, I hereby, in the name of the law, declare to the whole Republic, and to all good citizens, that the crew of the Friponne is in a ſtate of revolt againſt the laws.

Therefore, all the individuals who compoſe that crew are, from this moment, proclaimed rebels.—The captain and etat-major of the ſaid frigate are commanded to give no farther orders to the crew, and to conſider them no longer as French Republicans. But the wretches tremble, and the national thunder, which always puniſhes the criminal, is ready to fall on their heads.

(Signed) RICHERY.
Cadiz, 19th Ventoſe.

RICHERY, Commander in Chief of the Naval Forces of the French Republic in the Bay of Cadiz.

From the account which Citizen Bourreau, commander of the frigate Friponne, has rendered to me of the return to order of the crew of the ſaid frigate, who were declared rebels to the laws of the Republic, by a proclamation of yeſterday, at 3 o'clock in the evening—It is ordered that Citizen Bourreau, lieutenant of the fleet, ſhall reſume the command of the Friponne, aſſemble immediately his crew on the quarter-deck, and declare to them that they ſhall be no longer conſidered as rebels, if the principal chiefs and inſtigators of the mutiny are inſtantly arreſted, put into a boat and conducted on ſhore, to be guarded in a place of ſecurity until they ſhall be ſent to France to be tried.

All the crew of the Friponne are held reſponſible for any obſtruction which may be given to the meaſure which can alone ſave them from the rigour of the law.

LIBERTY. EQUALITY.

Cape Francois 4th year of the French Republic, one and indiviſible.

The ſpecial agents of the Executive Directory, Commiſſioners of the government of St. Domingo:—

To the Miniſter Plenipotentiary of the French Republic, near the United States of North America.

CITIZEN MINISTER,

Immediately on our arrival at St. Domingo we haſten to inform you, of the delegation which the executive directory have made us of their powers, by virtue of the CLVI article of the new French conſtitution. We are to exerciſe them to their diſcharge in this colony; and that the important authority with which we are veſted may turn to the advantage of the people under our government, we think it our duty to make uſe of every means which circumſtances afford to minds deſirous of doing good, and anxious ſolely for its attainment.

If the endeavors of the late French ambaſſador had but a partial ſucceſs, it was owing to a ſeries of events inſeparable from a great revolution; the coloniſts in Paris had a momentary influence; but the deceptive illuſion, with which they had ſurrounded the government diſſipated as a vapour, and the legiſlative body, as well as the executive directory pronounced themſelves in a moſt deciſive tone againſt thoſe eternal enemies of the principles of France and of its ſacred laws.

An active correſpondence between you and us, appeared to us well calculated to attain this end.—It was the frequency and the intimacy of the communications between the laſt commiſſion to St. Domingo and your predeceſſors which at that time moſt contributed in fruſtrating the infamous plots of our emigrants, in preventing their arming againſt this colony, and in neutralizing the effect of their manœuvres near the American government, and with the agents of foreign powers in the United States.

The conſtitution while it aboliſhes ſlavery declares, that the colonies are an integral part of the Republic, and that they ſhall be governad by the ſame laws. This declaration gives to St. Domingo the laws made relative to emigrants; who by the CCCLXIII. article of the conſtitution, are forever baniſhed from the French territory, while it takes abſolutely from the legiſlative body the right of making new exceptions on that head.

Filled with reſpect for the national will, we declare to you that our firm intention is to prevent their approaching our coaſt, and thus to guarantee this portion of the republic, from the peſtilential influence of their principles; and from the dangers of an unavoidable re-action, if they were ſuffered to return.

We know, Citizen Miniſter, that there may be ſome legal exception among them; ſome may have been forced by violent means, to abandon their homes, but the law, equitable in this reſpect, has left open to them the means of re-integration: A late decree of the Legiſlative Body entruſts to the Directory the deciſion on all petitions for being ſtruck off the liſt of emigrants; and as we exerciſe their functions in St. Domingo, we ſhall haſten to do juſtice to all.

The women, and children, the old men, who driven by the fury of the rebels againſt the national authority, fled from the conflagration of the Cape ſhall be carefully diſtinguiſhed from the abettors and authors of that unfortunate cataſtrophe. We ſhall pity misfortune; but never forgive crime.

We beg you conſequently, to give no paſſport for St. Domingo to the emigrants of this colony, except thoſe who may be authoriſed to return by a decree of the legiſlative body, by leave of the Executive Directory or by a deciſion of their delegates to the Lee ward Iſlands.

By the Preſident of the commiſſion.

BRIDGETOWN, MAY 3.

The proſpect of affairs in the Weſt-Indies now begin to wear a moſt propitious aſpect, and ſeem to promiſe not only a ſpeedy but happy and ſucceſsful termination in favour of Britain. Advices received yeſterday, from the army under Sir Ralph Abercrombie, enable us at length to ſtate that the expedition which ſailed from hence on the 22d ultimo, has inveſted the iſland of St. Lucia, were already the moſt brilliant ſucceſſes have attended our arms. The following are the moſt authentic particulars of their operations which we have been able to collect, of what has as yet been received here.

Having, as above ſtated, ſailed from hence on the 22d ult. the fleet arrived at St. Ann's bay, Martinico, on the 24th, where his Majeſty's ſhip Minotaur unfortunately got aground, and although not very materially injured, was unfit to proceed with the fleet, when they afterwards ſailed; and the ſloop Adventure with artillery ſtores, was totally loſt in going in. The fleet only remained here until Monday evening: the night previous to which Sir John La Forey, having reſigned his command to Admiral Chriſtian, ſailed for Antigua; when they proceeded to St. Lucia, and arrived off there on Tueſday morning; upon which, the Vengeance, of 74 guns, Hebe frigate, and Pelican brig, ran into a bay to the north of Pidgeon Iſland, where they ſoon ſilenced a battery, and drove the enemy from an adjoining poſition which they occupied, and thus enabled lieutenant colonel Malcomb to land his black corps, who eminently diſtinguiſhed themſelves in an attack which they immediately made on a party of the enemy. At the ſame time lieutenant colonel M'Donald having landed with a detachment of grenadiers, the whole of the fleet came to in Choque bay, from whence the Hebe and Pelican had alſo previouſly driven the enemy; and the next morning a general debarcation took place, without the leaſt oppoſition. On Wedneſday night, lieutenant colonel Malcomb ſtormed and took Moun Chambeau, and lieutenant M'Donald alſo attacked and carried Mount Chipeau, two advantageous poſitions, which will facilitate the operations againſt Morne Fortune, which with Pidgeon iſland, were the only fortifications of any ſtrength, then remaining in poſſeſſion of the enemy. During almoſt the whole time of the troops landing captain Walker, by the moſt active exertions, ſcowerd the coaſt with his morter boat, from which he brought ſhells to bear wherever the enemy appeared, and made a ſevere havock among them; to this is attributed, in a great meaſure, the ſafe landing of the troops; and ſo apparent was the annoyance of this boat to the enemy, that their whole attention was occupied in attemping to deſtroy it, when after continued efforts they at length threw a four and twenty pound ſhot through her by which ſhe was much injured. The loſs of the enemy has been conſiderable, and wherever our troops appear, they fly before them in diſmay, leaving arms, ammunition, and accoutrements behind them to aſſiſt their flight. It does not appear that on our part more than 50 men have been either killed or wounded; and from the rapid progreſs of our arms, ſcarce a doubt is entertained of the total reduction of the iſland by this time.

Nothing can, at this time, be more to the importance of the ſucceſſes, than the ſafe arrival, in Carliſle bay, of the fleet, which ſailed from England, with admiral Chriſtian, on the 21ſt of March, which event took place on Sunday laſt, having on board a powerful reinforcement of troops ready to co-operate in the future plans of the armament. The above fleet captured on their voyage, in the latitude of Madeira, a French national ſhip of 12 guns and retook a valuable Portugueſe veſſel, prize to her—the former arrived here with them, and the latter was ſent into Madeira.

MAY 14.

Authentic communication by the Albicore ſloop of war from Madeira.

On the 19th of April, an American veſſel arrived at Madeira from Magadore, which had fallen in, on the 9th, in lat. 31, 00. long. 14. 00. with a ſquadron of Dutch men of war, conſiſting of ſeven ſail of the line, three frigates, and a 20 gun ſhip; and was informed by them that they were bound to the Iſle of France, but were firſt to water at Teneriffe. The captain of the American veſſel added, that they had three prizes with them, but no troops on board.

MAY 21.

An advice boat arrived yeſterday evening from St. Lucia, and brings accounts down to the 18th inſtant, but which do not afford any proſpect of a ſpeedy deciſion, although ultimately the moſt deciſive ſucceſs is likely to enſue from the ſteady perſeverance and bravery of our arms.

On the 16th, at ten o'clock in the morning all the Britiſh batteries (about thirteen in number) were opened on the different poſts of the enemy, and a continued fire of 300 ſhot and ſhells an hour, kept up until Tueſday night, when a detachment of 800 men under lieutenant colonel M'Donald attempted the Vigie by ſtorm, but were repulſed with ſome loſs owing principally to the ſeparation of the party from their guide's being killed at the onſet, and an indiſcreet fire from an advanced detachment which apprized the enemy of the deſign.

On the ſame night the town of the Carranage was ſet fire to and was ſtill burning when the above veſſel left it; at which time about two thirds were conſumed.

Although no viſible impreſſion has yet appeared from our fire on the Morne, yet it being an open fortification without caſements, rendered ſtrong more from its eminent and fortified ſtate, there can be no doubt of conſiderable ſlaughter being made among the enemy, who are completely hemmed up within its narrow limits, and cut off from all communication with the interior of the country, ſo that not the leaſt ſupply can reach them.

The Vigie had been twice, previous to the above night, ſilenced, but afterwards renewed its annoyance to our works, which made it neceſſary to deſtroy it altogether, for which purpoſe the attack was then made, but not ſucceeding, [illegible] to be renewed with an additional force and co-operation by ſea the following night.

Alexandria, June 18.

The PRESIDENT of the UNITED STATES arrived in Baltimore on Thursday evening from Philadelphia, and is on his way to Mount Vernon.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER.

PHILADELPHIA, JUNE 12.

The new ship Mount Vernon of 400 tons, copper bottomed and worth 40,000 dollars, with 400 hhds. rum and sugar, with many other articles for her cargo and a large sum in specie (rumour says 50,000 pounds) was on her outward passage for London, two days ago, captured near the Capes by a French privateer who followed her out of port. The captain and crew were all set on shore and the vessel carried off. The cargo and vessel were supposed to be British property.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER.

PHILADELPHIA JUNE 13.

"A very unexpected event has thrown our merchants here into great consternation. A small French privateer, called the Flying Fish, went down the river with the ships Mount Vernon, Atlantic, and William Penn, and about six leagues from the capes captured the former ship, landed all her crew, and took her off. In consequence of threats from the privateer, that they would capture the others, they are on their return here again. The captain of the privateer said he had orders to capture all American vessels bound to English ports."

The ships Tammany, Captain Dangerfield, and the Hazard, Captain Hippins, with the brig George, Captain Quirk, from this port, were lying at Liverpool the 18th of April.—The Tammany was to sail for Baltimore on the 25th.

WESTERN POSTS.

A gentleman who left Niagara the 15th ult. informs, that every preparation was making by the British for evacuating the garrisons. No permits for goods or other things had been for some time given by the government, they being so soon to become unnecessary; in consequence of which no boats, excepting those with family goods, pass in; and those already there are remaining for the free intercourse before they return. The gentleman who brings this intelligence came in a dispatch boat to Oswego, which bro't orders for the troops, there to be in readiness to embark on board the gunboats from Kingston, ordered to receive them.

At York, a town on the head of the Lake Ontario, 40 miles distant from Niagara, the future seat of government of that province, the public buildings go on with spirit, several of them are already in considerable forwardness.

The British garrison, which has occupied the post at Point-a-Fair, on Lake Champlain, ever since the late war, have left it, and gone to Canada.

By account received at Albany, it appears that the British were leaving several of the Western Posts.

On the 31st of May last, it is said that the navy of England consisted of one hundred and seventy ships of the line, twenty-nine fifties, an hundred and eighty-eight frigates, and two hundred and eleven sloops. This is such an enormous mass of naval power, as has no counterpart in naval history.

It is a singular circumstance in the world of politics, that at the time general Pichegru, was appointed ambassador to Sweden, Gen. Clairfayt, so long his unsuccessful antagonist should be sent on a similar errend to Petersburgh. Our latest accounts threatened a rupture between Sweden and Russia; so that it is not improbable that these great military characters may become antagonists in the field of politics.

FROM THE MARYLAND JOURNAL.

A well informed correspondent assures us that for about a month past, there have been at Alexandria, forty thousand barrels of flour stored for exportation. He adds, that on the 1st of May last, twenty thousand barrels of flour were computed to be stored at Watt's Branch, above the great Falls of Potowmack, of which not more than one half can yet have been shipped for exportation. As grain of all kinds is daily becoming very plentiful in Europe, and as such immense quantities are at present on hand in this country, it may be expected that the enormous price of this great necessary of life will soon begin to fall.

We are likewise informed that the mills of George-Town are grinding off their stock as fast as possible, being at a moderate computation about fifty barrels per day. A thousand barrels have been shipped within this fortnight, for Philadelphia and this place.

Mr. Whitakar, the learned historian of Manchester, observes that an indelible proof of the celebrity of British prince Arthur, that six or seven hundred places in Britain still bear his name.

A remark of the same kind will be made by some future historian of America, as to the name of the present president. It may be amusing to enumerate some of the different counties, districts and towns in the United States which are discriminated by the name of WASHINGTON.

In each of the states of Virginia, Pennsylvania, New-York, Tennessee, Kentucky, Maine and Rhode-Island, there is a county of Washington. In North-Carolina, and Tennessee, there are also two districts under this title. Besides the City of Washington, there are towns of the same name in Pennsylvania, Kentucky, North-Carolina and Georgia. The number of places under the same application increasing.

On the 5th of April last, a singular debate occurred in the British house of Commons. It was occasioned by a proposal for taxing dogs, on a petition to this effect from the county of Leicester. As the debate is too prolix for republication here, we shall give a summary of some of the principal facts which transpired in the course of it.

Britain is estimated to contain two millions of dogs. They destroy annually fifty thousand sheep. Four hundred have been killed by a single dog. A large reward was offered for its apprehension, and two hundred men with dogs went in pursuit of it. A dog is supposed to consume upon an average, one penny wourth of wholesome victuals per day. This for two millions of dogs; comes to eight thousand three hundred and thirty three pounds, six shillings and eight pence sterling daily, or upwards of three millions sterling per annum.

Great quantity of grain, and butchers meat are bought for these animals. One gentleman contracted with his mealman at eight hundred pounds sterling a year to feed his dogs. A pack of fox hounds, usually cost a thousand pounds a year, and sometimes the whole bread in a country town is bought up from the bakers to supply them.

Canine madness, that utmost state of human misery, has become frequent. Thirty three persons bitten by mad dogs and seized with the hydrophobia, were during the last year, brought into the infirmary at Manchester. Mr. Pitt has proposed a tax of three shillings per head on all dogs.

The debate says it is common to see lap dogs carried to the fields by valets six feet high to give them an airing and an appetite for dinner.

PHILADELPHIA, JUNE 13.

Extract of a letter from captain George Dominick, of the ship Mount Vernon, dated 10th instant, off Wilmington, to Messrs. Willings and Francis.

"Gentlemen,

"It is with regret I now have to inform you, of the unfortunate and unjust capture of the ship Mount Vernon, by the French schooner Flying Fish: we had not been clear of our pilot more than two hours, had light airs from the S.S.E. Cape Henlopen bearing distant about six leagues.—Thursday, June 9, at 8 A. M. when we observed the said schooner about one league a head, she immediately bore down on us, gave us a shot, and ordered our boat on board, which we complied with, supposing that there was nothing wanting but to see our papers, knowing them to be perfectly clear and having nothing to fear, sent the boat on board with the second officer and four men to know their commands, all which they detained, and sent the boat back with 14 armed men with orders for me to bring the ship's papers on board, saying in the mean time that the ship was laden with naval stores; being confident I could soon relieve them from their suspicions, went on board with my papers, which the moment they got hold of them, they kept without examining them, and declared us to be a good prize. I then expostulated with them on the impropriety of such conduct towards American ships, and the property of our citizens; the only answer I could get in return was, that they had good information from several respectable houses in Philadelphia, one in particular, which they said was one of the first American houses there, that we had naval stores on board, and would not at first be convinced of the contrary; I at length prevailed on them to examine the manifest, port clearance and register which they did, and finding no naval stores therein, they did not seem to doubt her being loaded with the only articles which are on board of her; which is coffee, sugar, rum, staves, fustic and logwood.

The only plea they then had was, that since our treaty with Great Britain, they had orders and were determined to take every American vessel bound to or from British ports, even on suspicion of going to them. They after forcing us out of the ship without even suffering us to take all our baggage, sent us all on board the said schooner Flying Fish, which mounts 6 nine pounders, has 75 men, musquetry, &c. The captain and owner of the privateer has given his address in his own hand writing; his name is Paris, living in north Front-street, No. 399. He also told us of a list of ships that he had information of, and those of them that have not already sailed he is determined to take. The names are as follows: Ships Atlantic, William Penn, Dominick Terry with flour for Jamaica, Philadelphia, and the Mount Vernon, which I am now sorry they have in their possession.

"After getting us all on board the privateer, they stood in for Cape Henlopen roads, where they sent us on board of a pilot boat, where we now are. When we arrive, I shall be able to give you a more particular account of our treatment, &c.

(Signed)

GEORGE G. DOMINICK."

In coming up the river, Capt. Dominick spoke the ship Philadelphia, for Bristol, with naval stores, and apprized her of the danger of going any further without a convoy, captain Bliss has brought the ship to anchor and returned to port for further orders.

PROPOSALS

For publishing a Tragedy, entitled,

THE

Land we live in;

OR,

DEATH OF MAJOR ANDRE.

By the late Mrs. Marriott, authoress of the Chimera, Miscellaneous Poems, &c. late of the old American Company.

THIS Tragedy has been performed one night for the benefit of Mr. Marriott, at the Theatre Richmond, and met with universal plaudits: Tho' not equal to the compositions of her reigning author and authoresses, Mr. [illegible] diffidently recommends this production as a picture of truth, founded on facts in the American History. As such, and on the recommendation of a number of subscribers who have already given authority to the work, in a variety of towns in America, it is submitted to the public for further patronage.

Subscriptions taken in at Mr. Thomas's book store, and at the printing-office, Alexandria; at Mr. T. and J. Swords, New-York; Mr. Benjamin Russell, Boston; Mr. P. Young, Charleston; and Mr. C. Bradford, Philadelphia.

The work will be published by the 30th September—Price 3s.—1s. 6d. to be deposited at the time of subscribing and the rest on the receipt of the book.

The number of subscribers must consist of 300—and if that number cannot be ascertained by the 1st. of September, the money advanced will be returned.

Every subscriber will receive his or her play on or before the 30th of September, from whatever place they subscribed for the work. F. MARRIOTT.

☞ For a sketch of the plot (grounded on recent historical facts) a reference may be had to M'Grath's Prologue to the piece, published in the Mirror of this day.

M'GRATH'S PROLOGUE
TO THE
DEATH OF MAJOR ANDRE.

WRITTEN AT THE DESIRE OF MR. MARRIOTT, 2d. OF MARCH, 1796.

No fabl'd characters to night appear,
No feign'd diſtreſſes draw the pearly tear;
Hiſtoric truth pervades through ev'ry part,
And ſpeaks the genuine language of the heart.
Each ſide the Atlantic this affecting theme
Has call'd forth ſympathy's fraternal ſtream;
Both friend and foe with tenderneſs relate
The ſad neceſſity of Andre's fate!
Miſtaken loyalty his boſom warm'd,
A bloodleſs victory his boſom charm'd.
Objects like theſe, ſeduc'd his erring ſoul,
Detection followed, ſhame purſued the whole!
That dæmon, Arnold, fraud's adopted child,
Marked Andre's ruin and his fame defil'd.
Sunk was the hero! clouded like a ſpy,
The traitor fled—and thus did Andre die;
The patriot tongue which blaſts the villain's deed,
Pronounces ſtill—" Why thus muſt Andre bleed?"
Why ſhould the ſoldier quit fair honor's prize
To lurk obſcurely in a dark diſguiſe?
Like Wolfe, had Andre periſhed in the field,
Candor his ſword, integrity his ſhield,
Tho' fighting adverſe in a tyrant's cauſe,
Columbia's ſons had hail'd him with applauſe.
Peace to his ſhade! tho' fall'n the hero's name
Let pity conſecrate what's loſt in fame;
Our glorious Waſhington, the man ador'd,
With many a ſigh poor Andre's fate deplor'd;
And while ſtrict juſtice bade its victim die,
The manly tear illum'd great George's eye;
Death's awful ſignature the witneſs bore!
Could ſuff'ring mortal be diſtinguiſh'd more?
In this bleſt land, where liberty is law,
Where free born man repels the tyrant's awe,
The virtuous bard uncag'd, ſecurely ſings,
Nor courts the patronage of prieſts or kings.
Full many a wild note may this night break forth,
For truth and nature gave our play its birth.
In artleſs numbers ſimply it preſents
A faithful narrative of ſad events;
The guſhing tear 'twould ſtill ſpontaneous draw
And mourn that fate which ſome yet living ſaw.
Tho' now entomb'd the fair Compoſer lies,
Your praiſe her mem'ry can immortalize:
And ſhould ſoft pity weep o'er Andre's hearſe
Each drop ſhall ſanctify the poet's verſe.
Critics be generous, candid too and kind,
Be liberality with judgment joined:
One moral leſſon faithfully's impreſt—
That truth ſhould ever be our fav'rite gueſt;
That wand'ring hence precipitates to ſhame,
While pure integrity's the road to fame.
